"SINGLE TAX WOULD MAKE THE FARMER THE GOAT"

Amendment to Limit Elections and Safeguard the Initiative and Referendum Meets With Approval of Leading Ohioans--Affects Constitutional Amendments Only and Permits Action On the Same Question Three Times In Seven Years.

Of all the endorsements of the pending amendment to limit elections and safeguard the initiative and referendum, the one by Hon. J. Milton Barnhart of Lebanon, a former member of the recent Constitutional Convention, drives home hardest the object of the proposal. He says:

"The viewpoint of a farmer, which has been my chosen occupation. You will remember the persistent efforts which were made in the Constitutional Convention and have been made at the polls for the adoption of a measure for the classification of property for taxation, and which is but the handmaiden for the 'single tax.' If adopted, it would make the farmer the goat. The farmer is willing to contribute a full share, but unwilling to assume additional burdens. And they, together with those persons who realize the necessity of giving this important branch of industry a 'square deal,' should line up solidly for this amendment to curb continual nagging by those who seek to force upon the people something which they do not want."

The amendment commended by Mr. Barnhart and so many others is easy to understand. It reads:

"No amendment of the Constitution shall be submitted to the electors which involves any proposal or part of any proposal which, since Sept. 4, 1912, shall have been rejected more than once by the electors, unless six years shall have elapsed since the last rejection."

This amendment is popular with the members of the Constitutional Convention that framed the "L. & R." Here are expressions of approval from some of them:

HON. GEORGE W. HARRIS, CINCINNATI: "The initiative and referendum is one of the fundamental safeguards for the preservation of our democratic governmental institutions. As a member of the fourth Constitutional Convention of Ohio, I helped make the principle of the initiative and referendum a part of the organic law of the state. It is because I fear that the principle of the initiative and referendum may be obscured or destroyed by the abuse of the right to use this political instrumentality, that I am in favor of the conservative limitations on its use that are set forth in your proposed amendment."

HON. E. B. KING, SANDUSKY: "For one I believe that after a thorough canvass, once repeated, in favor of a given idea, has been had, that the electorate should be given a brief rest and an opportunity to think over the subject, and that six years is not too long."

HON. JOHN ROEHM, DAYTON: "You will find by the records of the Constitutional Convention that I favored a workable L. & R. However, I did not then or do I now favor an L. & R. that will continually keep the people in a turmoil relating to any particular subject defeated year after year. The continual agitation by submission of any such questions year after year must bring the L. & R. gradually in disrepute and will be finally the undoing of what was expected would be one of the great reforms in favor of the people."

HON. F. M. MARRIOTT, DELAWARE: "I have only to say that I am in favor of the amendment, and hope you will succeed in its adoption before the people."

HON. SOLOMON JOHNSON, STRYKER: "You and I may not agree upon some of the propositions that might be presented time after time after they had been defeated, but I am sure that we do agree that after a proposition has been defeated twice that the people ought to have a rest."

HON. JOHN ULMER, TOLEDO: "I am for the initiative and referendum, but the use of these two val-able rights must be within the limits of sound reason.

WHAT THE NEWSPAPERS SAY. Newspapers of Ohio praise this proposal to limit elections. Excerpts from editorials follow:

CINCINNATI ENQUIRER: "In accordance with the voters of Ohio of the proposed amendment to the Constitution of Ohio to prevent the resubmission of issues twice defeated until after the lapse of six years will rob the initiative and referendum of none of their potentialities as instruments of popular government, but will restore to the people of Ohio a feeling of confidence and a degree of certainty in its laws. Ohio is committed to the principles of the initiative and referendum, and will continue to employ them, unless their constant abuse by irresponsible agitators causes the people to rise in wrath and discard them altogether."

COLUMBUS STATE JOURNAL: "Viewed purely as an abstract proposal, as it should be, it would appeal to almost every thoughtful and steady-minded man. Nothing is gained by anybody, except those who profit directly by agitation, from keeping the state stirred up year after year by now expressions of opinion on the same old recently decided questions. Nothing is gained and much is lost in the way of attention to business and peace of mind."

COLUMBUS DISPATCH: "The fundamental law, while it should never be utterly beyond the reach of the amending hand, ought to be fairly stable. Statutes may now be changed every two years. Shall we assume that the Constitution basis of statutes should be subject to change every year? * * * There are other matters of public policy, the consideration of which should not be continually interrupted by futile agitation of questions recently settled."

WABLY REPUBLICAN HERALD: "It would save the state hundreds of thousands of dollars in doing away with elections on twice-defeated constitutional proposals for a period of six years. The people are entitled to rest upon these defeated proposals, and besides the State Constitution is not a football, to be kicked around at each election and amended each year to suit the whim of some high-salaried agitator. * * *"

EAST LIVERPOOL REVIEW: "It would be better if a halt were called somewhere. The decision of the electorate should be binding for a little while at least. Little, if any, good is accomplished by keeping the electorate in constant turmoil."

TIPPIN ADVERTISER: "The proposed amendment is aimed not at crippling the usefulness of the initiative and referendum, but at the agitators who would use it as a limit for the purpose of getting their pet hobby into the basic law of the state by exhausting the opposition."

CINCINNATI TIMES-STAR: "The L. & R. has done pretty well in Ohio. But it should be used as a means by which the people can express their opinion on any public question, not as a device for the waging of continual warfare by one group of special issue enthusiasts against another."

MT. GILEAD UNION-REGISTER: "To be whipped once often settles a fellow. To get two thrashings generally does him so that he is willing to wait until he is stout again."

HILLSBORO NEWS-HERALD: "Put away your prejudices and desires so far as certain pet theories of yours are concerned, and look at this amendment calmly, and we are certain that it will appeal to you as fair and reasonable."

MANSFIELD NEWS: "People of Ohio are justly tired of the perennial agitation that is kept up under some guise whereby the community is kept in an uproar about something all of the time, with various elections, proposed constitutional amendments

Leesburg Druggist Is Duped.

A druggist at Leesburg was duped last week in great fashion by two men and a woman. The party arrived in town on the B. & O. train and went to the druggists where the woman asked the proprietor if she might go behind the prescription case to dress her limb.

The druggist gave his consent and the woman after remaining behind the case some time reappeared. She joined her gentlemen friends and left for the depot. The druggist suspected something and on making an investigation discovered that all his cocaine was gone.

The officers were notified and before the two could get a train they were placed under arrest and locked up.

Be it resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, Three-fifths of the members elected to both houses concurring thereon: That there shall be submitted to the electors of this state in the manner provided by law, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1916, a proposal to supplement article XII by an additional section to be designated section 12, article XII of the constitution of Ohio to read as follows:

C. C. HILDEBRANT, Secretary of State of the State of Ohio, do hereby certify that the foregoing is an exemplified copy, carefully compared by me with the original roll now on file in this office and in my official capacity as Secretary of State and found to be true and correct, of a joint resolution, adopted by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, on the 18th day of April, A. D. 1915, and filed in the office of the Secretary of State on the 25th day of April, A. D. 1915, entitled "Joint Resolution to Amend Article XII of the Constitution of Ohio by the addition of Section 12."

For such a great state as Ohio to be continually called upon to vote on the same questions, is childish.
